pitched games on the part of Bill Donevan's boxmen went for naught here this afternoon, and the Yankees, after heading the American League parade for a month, barring one day, slid with | a thud into third place. Fielder Jones's Browns, now compildouble deteat. The score was 2 to 1 in the opening game and 2 to 0 in the closing number. With these two victories under their beits, the Browns now boast of ten straight victories. now boast of ten straight victories.

The Yankees continue to run in the maiden class, as far as St. Louis is concerned. They have played six games at Sportsman's Park this season and have yet to come through with a victory. Five times in these six games here Donovan's team has held the Jones

mes here this sesson by one run and

The double bill to-day ended with two Yankees in the bastile after they had put up losing battles with Umpire Nallin. In the opening affair Nallin chased Manager Denovan off the coaching lines for some imitations of the umpire after Selmer Miller had been called out at first base.

Both Mogridge and Fisher pitched he kind of ball that will win more ames than go the other way. Their cork was futile, however, against the itching of the two St. Louis left-hand-

Sisler singled in the second, advanced on an out, and counted when Marsans singled to right.

The Yanks tied the score in the fifth on a pass to Alexander, Mogridge's sac-rifice and Bauman's single to centre. In the same 'nning the Browns put over the winning run on Marsans's double to left, an out and Lavan's single past left, an out and Lavan's single past third.

The Yanks had a fine chance to break up the game in their half of the ninth. With one out, Oldring and Mullin drew passes, and a balk put Rube on third and Mullin on second. Nunamaker, who batted for Boone, grounded to the infield and went to second while Oldring was being run down. Then Alexander ended the game with a fly to Marsans.

The second contest was a great pitching duel between Plank and Fisher The southpaw had a shade on the Yankee right-hander, who was pitching his best game of the last two months. Plank allowed four hits and Fisher five, all being singles.

The Yankees got only two runners to second base and none to third. The Brown got only one runner to second outside of the third inning, but this one frame settled the battle.

Lavan opened the inning with a pass and stole second. After Plank had flied to Baumann Shotton beat out a grounder to Peck, Lavan reaching third, Shotton stole second. Austin grounded to Fisher and Lavan was chased back to third base, where Shotton was standing. The latter was called out.

Ward Miller walked, filling the bases,

Ward Miller walked, filling the bases, and Sisler singled to centre, scoring Lavan and Austin. That was enough to win the ball game.

Man upheld the honor of Eli against two rival institutions of tennis learning. He waded through the New York University captain, Edmund J. Fixman, 6.4, 6.—2, and then through the old Cornell player, Kenneth D. Fischer, 7.—5, 6.—1. Fixman and Fischer are each exponents of Man's aggressive style of net attack, but the former Yaie captain beat them at their own game, often outracing his opponents to forecourt and smashing lobs hard or sending over low, tricky volicys. Man grew on each of his opponents as both Fixman and Fischer gave him a hard fight in the first set, and faded in the second. Fixman came to forecourt on his service, but Man broke through for the one game necessary to give him the set. Fischer's pretity fast passing drives came off in good style in the first set also, but the Cornellian was not quite steady enough. Hall, a member of the charmed first ten in the national ranking, was pushed hard by Arthur MacPherson, who took four games in the first set and five the hind he doubles. One team, were played in the doubles. One team, the Kings County veteran, Fred G. Anderson, and Fixman, advanced to the final round by going through three matches yesterday. In one they defeated Fred C. Baggs and C. M. Bull Jr. Among other winners in doubles were Hall, Arthur S. Cragin, G. A. L. Dionne and Charles Chambers.

Among those not so fortunate were and those not so fortunate were the contending teams, it saw a marked tightening of the cantending teams, it saw a marked tightening of the sand at the end of the week, with Boston less than 10 points separated New York from St. Louis, in seventh place, at the red of the week.
